

3213 Law, Politics, and Society. Prerequisite: 1113 or permission of instructor. Examines the manner by which courts and other political actors employ legal standards to solve problems and how judicial decisions incorporate legal and political considerations. Focus is on the impact of the law as it shapes or alters the political community, the extent that law changes to fit needs of society, and the role of politics in interpretation of law. (Sp)